SHOTS FIRED BY WOMEN

Had Addressed Meeting of Laborers—Social Party Blamed

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Nikolai Lenine, the Bolshevik premier, who was shot twice by an assasin last Friday night at Moscow, has died of his wounds, according to a telegram from Petrograd received by the Exchange Telegraph Company by way of Copenhagen.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The latest official news concerning the condition of Nikolai Lenine comes in the form of two bulletins by Russian wireless, timed 7:30 and 8:30 Saturday evening, respectively. These bulletins state that his general conidtion is good, that immediate danger is passed and that no complications have arisen.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 1.—The condition of Nikolai Lenine, the Russian Bolshevik premier, against whose life an attempt was made Friday night, is reported by the Russian newspaper Pravda to be serious. The newspaper says the premier was shot by a young girl belonging to the intellectual class. She was arrested.

The attack on Lenine was made Friday evening after a meeting of laborers, where Lenine spoke. As the premier was leaving, two women stopped him and discussed the recent decrees regarding the importation of foodstuffs. In the course of the interview three shots were fired.

A Moscow telegram—by way of Vienna says the attack on the Russian premier was made by two women belonging to the social revolutionary party.

TO MAKE FIGHT FOR F. J. HENEY

Will Mandamus Placing of His Name on Ticket for Governor

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—Approximately 150 Democrats, many of them from Los Angeles and the southern part of the state, met in conference here today and adopted measures for placing the name of Francis J. Heney on the November ballot, as the Democratic nominee for governor.

If Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan places the name of Mayor James Rolph, of San Francisco, defeated for the Republican nomination, on the ticket, according to Milton K. Young of Los Angeles, the Democrats who attended today's conference will be prepared to seek a writ of prohibition. If Jordan does not place Heney's name on the ballot, the Democrats will seek to compel him to do so by carrying the matter into the state supreme court through a writ of mandate.

The conference also approved the appointment of a committee of seven, to be named later, to meet O. K. Cushing, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, and enlist the efforts of that organization in behalf of Heney.

Heney attended the meeting and was one of the principal speakers.

Later in a formal statement Young said:

"The provisions of section 33 of the primary election law, to the effect that a candidate registered with one political party may have the nomination or endorsement from another political party, in the event only of his securing the nomination of his own party, bars Mr. Rolph from a place on the Democratic ticket.

"This being the case the contest in this primary was between two Democrats registered with that party, Mr. Woolwine and Mr. Heney. And, as Mr. Heney received the highest vote he is the nominee of the Democratic party.

"The voters who cast votes for Mr. Rolph at the primary were presumed to know under the provisions of the primary law that such votes could not be counted unless Mr. Rolph also got the Republican nomination. Thus, such voters consented that their votes be not counted; unless Mr. Rolph should become the nominee of the Republican party.

"Section 25 of the primary law is to the effect that a vacancy caused by the prohibitions of section 33 cannot be filled by the state central committee, but as Mr. Rolph was the only one so prohibited and Mr. Heney not being excluded by the provisions of said section, and, having received a majority of the votes cast for the eligible Democratic candidates, becomes the nominee and no vacancy exists.

"The only way that a vacancy could have occurred in this Democratic primary would have been if Mr. Rolph was the only candidate for the nomination on the Democratic ticket, and

WOODROW WILSON

"WORLD OF LABOR CRUSADERS AGAINST MENACE OF HUNS"

President of the United States Reviews Perils Which Brought America Into War

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—All Americans are addressed as fellow enlisted men of a single army, of many parts but commanded by a single obligation, in President Wilson's Labor Day message.

At first the President says, this hardly seemed more than a war of defense against military aggression; now it is clear that it is more than a war to alter the balance of power of Europe, that Germany was striking at what free men everywhere desider and must have, the right to determine their own fortunes. Labor day, 1918, therefore, is supremely significant, he says.

The President's message follows:

"My fellow citizens, Labor Day, 1918, is not like any Labor Day that we have known. Labor Day was always deeply significant with us. Now it is supremely significant. Keenly as we were aware a year ago of the enterprise of life and death upon which the nation had embarked, we did not perceive its meaning as clearly as we do now. We knew that we were all partners and must stand and strive together, but we did not realize as we do now that we are all enlisted men, members of a single army, of many parts and many tasks but commanded by a single obligation, our faces set towards a single object. We now know that every tool in every essential industry is a weapon, and a weapon wielded for the same purpose than an army rifle is wielded—a weapon which if we were to lay it down no rifle would be of any use.

War of Emancipation

"And a weapon for what? What is war for? Why are we enlisted? Why should we be ashamed if we were not enlisted? At first it seemed hardly more than a war of defense against the military aggression of Germany. Belgium had been violated, France invaded and Germany was afield again as in 1870 and 1866, to work out her ambitions in Europe; and it was necessary to meet her forces with force. But it is clear now that it is much more than a war to alter the balance of power in Europe. Germany, it is now plain, was striking at what free men everywhere desire and must have—the right to determine their own fortunes, to insist upon justice, and to oblige governments to act for them and not for the private and selfish interests of a governing class. It is a war to make the nations and peoples of the world secure against every such power as the German autocracy represents. It is a war of emancipation. Not until it is won can men anywhere live free from constant fear or breathe freely while they go about their daily tasks and know that governments are their servants, not their masters.

Long Premeditation

"This is, therefore, the war of all wars which labor should support and support with all its concentrated power. The world can not be safe, men's lives cannot be secure, no man's rights can be confidently and successfully asserted against the rule and mastery of arbitary groups and special interests, so long as governments like that which, after long premeditation, drew Austria and Germany into this war, are permitted to control the destinies and the daily fortunes of men and nations, plotting while honest men work, laying the fires of which innocent men, women and children are to be the fuel.

Crusades for Freedom

"You know the nature of this war. It is a war which industry must sustain. The army of laborers at home is as important, as essential, as the army of fighting men in the far fields of actual battle. And the laborer is not only needed as much as the soldier. It is his war. The soldier is his champion and representative. To fail to win would be to imperil everything that the laborer has striven for and held dear since freedom first held its dawn and his struggle for justice began. The soldiers at the front know this. It steels their muscles to think of it. They are crusaders. They are fighting for no selfish advantage for their own nation. They would despise any one who fought for the selfish advantage of any nation. They are giving their lives that homes everywhere, as well as the homes they love in America, may be kept sacred and safe, and men everywhere be free as they insist upon being free. They are fighting for the ideals of their own land—great ideals, immortal ideals, ideals which shall light the way for all men to the places where justice is done and men live with lifted heads, and emancipated spirits. That is the reason they fight with solemn joy and are invincible.

To Preserve the Peace

"Let us make this, therefore, a day of fresh comprehension not only of what we are about, and of renewed and clear-eyed resolution, but a day of consecration also, in which we devote ourselves without pause or limit to the great task of setting our country and the whole world free to render justice to all and of making it impossible for small groups of political rulers anywhere to disturb our peace or the peace of the world or in anyway to make tools and puppets of those upon whose consent and upon whose power their own authority and their own very existence depends.

"We may count upon each other. The nation is of a single mind. It is taking counsel with no special class. It is serving no private or single interest. Its own mind has been cleared and fortified by these days which burn the dross away. The light of a new conviction has penetrated to every class amongst us. We realize as we never realized before that we are comrades, dependent upon one other irresistible when united. Powerless when divided. And so we join hands to lead the world to a new and better day."

TOMATO PICKERS RETURN TO WORK

Prompt Action by State Food Commission Saves Crop

(Special to The Republican.)

HANFORD, Sept. 1.—Determined to brook no delay that shall hinder the harvesting of foodstuffs, the California Food Administration has taken prompt action on a report made to it by B. B. Price, county food administrator and as the result of the action which took the form of a warning order a group of Japanese laborers resumed work yesterday after a brief cessation and a crop of tomatoes which the Kings County Packing Company of Armona is harvesting, is being picked industriously.

The Japanese, on the plea that they had been offered a higher wage than the packing company's contract called for, by other needing help, refused to carry out their agreement, the authorities report. A wire to the California Food Commission explaining the situation brought a speedy answer that there must be no interference with the harvesting of perishable crops at this time, under penalty of rigid prosecution by the Federal government. The workers are back at work.

EDWARD BAILEY, MERCED SOLDIER, AMONG MISSING

Edward G. A. Bailey of Merced, reported among the war department's casualty list yesterday, is the son of Mrs. Emma Bailey of Merced. Word was received by his mother of the fact that he is missing, but no additional details are available. Bailey was in the draft, and had been stationed at Camp

RALPH E. GROTE IS WOUNDED ON FRENCH FRONT

Announcement was received from the war department yesterday by Mrs. Millie Grote ,2306 Webster street, that her son, Ralph E. Grote, had been wounded in action in France on August 8. The telegram stated that the degree of the wound was undetermined.

Private Grote is a member of Company D, of the 39th Infantry. He went to Camp Lewis with the draft in November, 1917, and was transferred to Camp Green, North Carolina. He embarked for France in May last. His mother states that the last letter received from him was dated July 21. In this letter he said he had just returned from his first battle, and was unwounded.

Before entering the army he was employed as a fireman by the Associated Pipe Line Company in Fresno.

ANGLES SOULIS OF TEHACHAPI DIES IN FRANCE

(Special to The Republican)

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 1.—Angles Soulis, whose name appears in the list of killed in action in battle overseas, is the second Tehachapi boy to die from gunshot wounds, Earle Davenport's death was reported some months ago.

Angles Soulis' nearest of kin is Andrew Cahilla, a resident of Tehachapi. He was a well known boy of that region and was among the first to join the army after war was declared.

Tehachapi has sent several scores of soldiers to the front out of a population of less than 500.

YANKEES DRIVE TWO MILES FROM LAON ROAD

Advance Beyond Juvigny Is Strewn with German Dead

THIRTY TANKS LEAD THE WAY

Allied Airplanes Dominate Sky to Neutralize Hun Defense

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 1.—(By the Associated Press.)—The American troops in their drive beyond Juvigny last night and today advanced about two miles and captured nearly 600 prisoners, together with considerable war supplies.

The advance from Juvigny began at 4 o'clock Saturday and American had gained their objective by 9 o'clock at night. Ragged points in the new line were smoothed out today.

In addition to the 600 prisoners, two pieces of artillery were captured and a great number of machine guns and trench mortars. Trenches, shell holes and the open field were strewn with German dead.

The drive proved a field day for the Americans and French. The artillery leveled the ground, while Allied planes maintained uninterrupted connection by radio with battery commanders. The infantry responded like veterans and with enthusiastic shouts began the pursuit.

With the infantry went the tanks, and it was a different story from that when they first advanced against Juvigny. Thirty tanks had been detailed for the work. They were light, two-man French tanks, capable of a speed over rough ground of ten of fifteen miles an hour, and almost as easily handled as an automobile.

Clean Up Hill Positions

When the order for the advance was given the Americans leaped out of their positions, plunging toward the points that had been indicated. From out of concealed positions the tanks moved toward the machine gun nests. North of Juvigny there was a hill on which the Germans had concentrated strong machine gun forces, but there was little to do there when the infantry arrived. In some cases the positions actually had been obliterated.

There was no organized resistance; it was a case of mopping up rather an extended district. The Germans who were still left in the area were detached forces, many of them in caves, some in sections of the old trenches.

Torny-Sorny was reached without a struggle, but practically every other position between the American line of departure and the objective was yielded only because the Germans were unable to retain it.

Two New Divisions

Prisoners say that within the past few days two new German divisions—the 238th and the 237th—the first of which marched from Rheims and the other from Metz, had been emplaced in the sector. Both were excellent organizations, but, like others encountered recently, were afflicted with that mysterious something which caused them to crack when pounded.

A new variety of barrage was used by the Americans. Prisoners characterized it as a "crazy fire." Others solemnly declared that they had been subjected to a counter barrage by their own army. That did occur in at least one instance, due to the confusion in the German aerial service.

The Americans held their long-range guns on a line of targets, beginning their barrage along a line to the rear of that. This barrage moved on and in a brief interval another barrage started at the same point. When the first moving line of fire reached that of the long-range guns, they shifted, and a triple barrage was presented.

Ordinarily when a creeping barrage passes those under the fire feel free to re-appear. In this case they reappeared only to be subjected to another smothering fire.

On the Americans' left similar tactics were used, but the intervals were longer, the Americans' guns covering exactly twice the ground if measured by the density of the fire.

Eighteen Planes at Once

The Allied mastery of the air in this sector is unquestioned. In the air at one time there were counted eighty Allied planes. It was one of those rare opportunities for observation work; the visibility was good, and squadron after squadron ascended. With the observation planes went combat planes, a few of which disappeared over the German lines to take part in the actual fighting.

Occasionally a German plane challenged their presence, but in every case it was driven off. The Allied planes even prevented the Germans from spotting for their own artillery with any degree of efficiency. Not one Allied plane was brought down.

BRITISH CAPTURE 57,318 IN AUGUST

LONDON, Sept. 1.—(British official)—The British captured in the month of August 57,218 German prisoners, 857 guns, more than 5,150 machine guns and 1,600 trench mortars.

BRITISH ENTERING LENS OUTSKIRTS; CROSS AILETTE

Over 2000 Prisoners Taken; Germans Giving Up Territory West from Armentieres

By the Associated Press.

The Germans continue to give ground before the Allies. Daily the trend of events accentuate the insecurity of the German lines and their inability to hold back the aggressors.

Where, two months ago, great salients projected in to the Allied front these either have been flattened out or are in the process of being blotted out, and in some instances the Allies themselves have driven in wedges.

With the Marne and Picardy sectors now practically reclaimed, the wings of the present Allied offensive are moving in a manner that bodes ill for the Germans. In the north, the wing on the Lys salient southwest of Ypres gradually is bending under voluntary retirements and the pressure of Field Marshal Haig's forces. Following the fall of Kemmel, the Allied line has been moved further forward until it now rests almost upon the Estaires-La Bassee road, less than seven miles southwest of Armentieres. By the wiping out of this salient the menace to the channel ports has been overcome.

Threaten Rail Line to Laon

On the southern wing, north of Soissons, the French and American troops are continuing their progress. The villages of Leury and Crecy-au-Mont have been captured and, crossing the Ailette, a footing has been gained in the woods west of Coucy-le-Chateau, through which passes the railroad line running from Chauny to Laon. Large numbers of prisoners have been taken.

From Arras southward to the vicinity of Noyon the British and French troops have made remarkable gains.

Peronne, the last important town in German hands on the Somme river, has been captured. The British passed on eastward and northward, with steady strides. Bouchavesnes and Rancourt and the high ground adjacent to them also are British, and Field Marshal Haig's men have arrived at the outskirts of St. Pierre Vaast wood. Farther to the north other towns have been taken, including Bullecourt, which last week changed hands several times. The Canadians and Australians were in the forefront of the maneuvers throughout this region and did gallant work. Considerably more than 2,000 prisoners have been taken by the British and a few guns also have been captured.

To the south where the French are operating against the Germans along the Canal Du Nord; there have been violent artillery duels. Seven miles south of Peronne, at Epanancourt, the French have forced another crossing of the canal, and two miles northeast of Nesle they have captured the village of Rouy le Petit.

May Give Up Lens

Unofficial reports are to the effect that the British have reached the outskirts of Lens, the famous coal mining town north of Arras, and that conflagrations are visible behind the lines in the neighborhood of Lens and as far as Armentieres. These fires are taken as an indication that it is the intention of the Germans to retreat in this general direction. The German war office admits the relinquishment of territory between Ypres and La Bassee, declaring that the movement was for the purpose of shortening the German line and that it was carried out without the knowledge of the British.

WHOLE FAMILY IS HURT IN COLLISION

Joseph Mills' Auto Struck by Truck Near Hanford Woman May Die

(Special to The Republican.)

HANFORD, Sept. 1.—Mrs. Joseph Mills may die as a result of an accident in which four persons were knocked unconscious, and two were severely injured, when the automobile of Joseph Mills, prominent rancher of the Mussel Slough district, collided with a truck near Armona, and was turned over three times yesterday. Mrs. Mills was injured internally, and may die. Mr. Mills had his right ear torn off. Their son, Niles Mills, 8 years old, suffered a broken collar bone. Mr. and Mrs. Rex Forbes were severely bruised. M. Faria, of Hanford, the driver of the truck was slightly hurt. The injured were taken to the Hanford sanitarium.

Neither Mills nor Faria could quite explain the accident. The collision occurred at the Giddings crossing, one mile south of Armona. The turns are narrow, and hidden by orchards. Both drivers say they were not exceeding 18 miles an hour. Neither claims to have seen the other until almost the moment of impact. The heavy cream truck struck the automobile on one side rolling the car over and throwing the occupants out. Some of them were crushed under the car.

The Mills family and their neighbors were taking their small son to Hanford following an accident in which he lost a toe. The boy caught the toe in the chain of a bicycle. Sheriff Farmer rushed to the scene of the accident to make an investigation.

CAN'T SHAKE FOR SMOKES IN HANFORD

(Special to The Republican.)

HANFORD, Sept. 1.—All gambling games in Hanford ceased by agreement yesterday. The mayor and the police a few days ago gave notice that there would be no more card playing in the pool rooms, and no more shaking dice at the cigar stands after September 1.

The keepers of stands and pool rooms are said to have agreed to cooperate with the police in enforcing the law.

ARRESTED FOR VAGRANCY.

B. F. Hernandez was arrested by Detectives McNickle at H and Tulare streets yesterday on the charge of vagrancy, when seen prowling about an automobile belonging to J. H. Bush, 2112 Rose avenue.

VOORMEZEELE FALLS PRIZE TO YANKEE TROOPS

ERUPTION ON TOUL SECTOR

Germans Attempt Raid but Are Repulsed by U. S. Troops

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FLANDERS, Sept. 1—(By the Associated Press).—For the first time American troops fought on Belgian soil today. They captured Voormezeele and were engaged in the operations elsewhere in the same locality.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters says he hears that the Americans, besides taking Voormezeele, have captured several strong positions between Voormezeele and Ypres.

AMERICAN FORCES IN LORRAINE, Saturday, Aug. 31.—(By the Associated Press).—German artillery last night shelled the American lines in the Tuol sector. Following a lull of several hours the bombardment was resumed at daybreak today, gradually narrowing to a concentrated fire on a small sector.

At 5 o'clock this morning a German force estimated at about 200 men attempted a raid behind a barrage. The enemy was driven off before he reached the trenches. Some German dead were left.

Another raid attempted in the Vosges sector this morning was repulsed.

Flanders Battle Line

LONDON, Sept. 1.—British troops continue to advance in the Lys salient, southwest of Ypres. The British have crossed the Lawe and are nearing the road from Estaires to La Bassee, according to the war office statement today.

Northeast of Bapaume the British forces have cleared the enemy from Longatte and Ecoust-St. Mein. South of Bapaume they have made progress toward Le Transloy.

The British line in the Lys sector now runs as follows:

From Zillebeke to Voormezeele, to Voorstraet, to Lindenhoek to La Creche, to Doulieu, to the western edge of La Gorgue, a suburb of Estaires, to La Couture and then to the old battle line north of Festubert.

All of these are in British possession.

TELLS RAIL MEN TO AVOID POLITICS

Says Government Must Conduct Lines Above Suspicion

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Director General McAdoo today ordered all railroad men, officials and employes alike, to keep out of politics.

Coming state and federal elections as well as the primary contests, the director-general said, make it imperative that the conduct of all should be so scrupulously guarded that there can be no charge of railroad influence.

Pointing out that while railroads were under private management it was common report that their participation in politics was widespread. Mr. McAdoo said under government control, there are no longer private interests to serve.

"Under government control," says the announcement, "there is no inducement to officers and employes to engage in politics. On the contrary they owe a high duty to the public scrupulously to abstain therefrom."

He announced that no railroad officer, attorney or employe may do any of the following:

Be an officer or member of any political committee or organization that solicits funds for political purposes.

Be a delegate, a chairman or an officer in any political convention.

Solicit or receive funds for any political purpose or contribute to any political fund collected by an official or employe of any railroad, or any official or employe of the United States or any state.

Assume the conduct of any political campaign.

Attempt to coerce or intimidate another officer or employe in his vote. (Violation of this rule, Mr. McAdoo says, will result in immediate dismissal.)

Become a candidate for any political office. Those who desire to run for office or engage in politics must immediately sever their connections with the United States railroad service.

Membership on a local school or park board will not be construed as a political office.

Calling on all the railroad men to carry out the spirit of the policy so announced, the director general says:

"Let us demonstrate to the American people that under federal control, railroad officers, attorneys and employes cannot be made part of any political machine nor be used for any organized partisan or selfish purpose. Let us set such a high standard of public duty and service that it will be worthy of general emulation."

WOMAN BURNS RUBBISH.

Stella George was arrested at 618 G street yesterday by Patrolmen Sayre and Hulbert on the charge of violating ordinance 286, section two, by burning rubbish about the premises. She covered the fire with a pan on the approach of the officers.

CHARGES BOARD USURPS POWER

Chamber of Commerce of U. S. Makes Attack on Trade Commission

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Usurpation of power, inefficiency and unjust abuse of business intersets are among charges made against the Federal Trade Commission and laid before President Wilson by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

In a letter to the President, made public tonight by the organization, the directors approve and submit a report denouncing the trade commission as an irresponsible body that has lost the confidence of the public and asking the President to remedy this condition by filling two existing vacancies in the membership with able men "whose interests will be single to the commission's work." The report was prepared by the chamber's Federal trade committee of which Rush C. Butler, a Chicago lawyer, is chairman. It proffers the seven following charges:

"The commission has undertaken the exercise of functions beyond its own jurisdiction to the detriment of its proper usefulness.

"The commission has begun the study of important situations, but because of vacillating interest or for other reasons not apparent, has left its work incomplete.

"The commission's procedure, originally orderly and appropriate, has been changed without public notice or notice to Congress.

"The commission has abused its powers of publicity.

"Prominent features of the commission's recent food investigation were subversive of common justice.

"In presenting information to Congress and the public the commission has been heedless of the accuracy and frankness which its position and the circumstances require.

"The commission has departed from the fundamental purpose for which it was established."

The report sets forth that it does not undertake to criticise in detail specific acts of the commission, but rather to point out mistakes in principles of conduct. The President is assured that the chamber and its committee, which has followed the work of the commission since its organization three years ago, does not represent special business interests.

Gospel Themes in Fresno Churches

FOLLOWING JESUS IS CHRISTIANITY
—First Christian

Following Jesus, Dr. H. O. Breenden said in his sermon at the morning service of the First Christian church, was the basis of Christianity. Organized churchism, and creedal foundations for religion were not essential, he said, for true Christian living. He instanced the apostles as examples of men who had no formal creeds, but were Christians because they followed Christ.

In part, Dr. Breeden spoke as follows:

The simplicity of the gospel, the essence of the Christian religion is expressed in two words of Christ: "Follow me."

Christianity is not formal, mechanical or legalistic. It is vital. Christ's idea of the Christian is one who has followed his Master in thought, in prayer, in life. To be a Christian is to be Christlike. Theologians often confound us with learned definitions of Christianity and creedal statements. But there is only one article in the divine creed. All articles of religion are melted into one: "Follow Jesus."

Christianity is Following Jesus

One day Jesus met several young men and bade them rise up and follow Him. They became Christians. John, the beloved disciple, was one of that glorious company. Undoubtedly he became a Christian by obeying that simple command. But John had none of the troubles about the Bible or the church or the creed. John was not a Christian because he believed in the Bible or in church; for the New Testiment with its books had not been written and the church had not been organized. John was not a Christian because he believed a certain creed, for even the Apostles creed was not written for a century after his death. What made John a Christian, therefore? He was a Christian because he followed Jesus and was trying to do Christ's work in Christ's way. All of which greatly simplifies religion.

Law of Renunciation

Another young man of that first company of devoted followers of Jesus was Peter. Like his companion John in the fishing business he left his nets and boats and followed Jesus. Years afterward he heard his Master announce to a rich young ruler the divine law of renunciation in the command: "If thou wilt be perfect, go sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come and follow me. But when the young man heard that saying he went away sorrowful, for he had great possessions." The price was too great for the young man to pay. He made the great refusal. "A rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven." Peter heard the interview and saw it all and he was puzzled, amazed. In his perplexity he exclaimed: "Behold we have left all and followed thee, what shall we have therefore?" Peter was practical, matter-of-fact, insistent and demanding. What is there in it for us? Is it worth while to follow Jesus? This is our question today. We sympathize with Peter. What shall we have therefore?

In rapid and resistless answers we affirm: In the first place we shall have Christ's character. Christ's character—not another's. There is none like Him in purity, in generosity, in unselfishness, in magnanimity, in devotion to duty, in love. Is that compensation sufficient?

Service Counts

We shall have the satisfaction of effective service. "The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many." "If any man would be chief among you let him become the servant of all."

What then shall we have? We shall have our cross. Listen: "If any man will come after Me let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow Me." Following Jesus is not a holiday jaunt but the most serious affair that can command the soul. "There is a Calvary in the soul that answers back to the great Calvary of the Universe and the supreme business of discipleship is to keep the connections true."

What then shall we have? We shall have Christ's joy. Let John lead us to the very edge of the Garden and he will tell us what he heard his Master saying: "These things have I spoken unto you that my joy might remain in you and that your joy might be full." Christ's joy in the soul! What does it mean? Pleasure, happiness—infinitely more. The writer to the Hebrews declares that "Jesus for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despised the shame and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."

SAYS CENTRAL POWERS MUST GO DOWN TO INEVITABLE DEFEAT

J. Stitt Wilson Claims Intellectual, Material and Moral Superiority of Allies; 4,000 People Listen to Speaker in Park

That in intellectual, material and moral resources the Allies are self-sustaining, and that in each of those branches of human endeavor, mankind is not indebted to Germany for anything which the Allies themselves could not supply, were the assertions of J. Stitt Wilson of Berkeley before the mass union service meeting in the courthouse park last night. His subject was "The Invincible Allies."

This was the third address by Mr. Wilson in the past five weeks in the courthouse park. On each occasion he was greeted by crowded audiences, but last night's meeting was by far the largest. It was estimated that over 4,00 people listened to the address.

He claimed that the Allies could not be defeated because the cause which they had at heart, and the resources they had in brains, men and material were superior to that of Germany, whose forty years of preparation had given her a temporary lead. Victory for the Allies, he said, was inevitable. He also asserted that while a case might be made out for German 'kultur,' the progress of mankind would not be hindered by the ommission of a single German name.

"Roland G. Usher," he said "in his great book on 'Winning the War' makes the following declaration at the close of his first chapter on the 'menace of Germany:' "Only one thing can cause an allied defeat—a failure of conviction on the part of the British, French and American people of the greatness of the cause of Democracy, of the splendor of the moral crusade upon which they have enlisted, of the the necessity of victory to make safe the world for posterity.

The Invincible Allies.

"Boasting is not battling. Braggadocio is not fighting. Proxy patriotism is pathetic. And yet to those of us at home while our boys have gone to the front there is left for us to thoroughly understand the issues of the great war and do bravely because we understand clearly 'morale is half the battle. And a clear insight into the immense powers and resources of the Allies will show us that though Germany spent forty years of getting ready to whip the civilized world, and make herself the ultimate world power by land and sea.

"Germany is already beaten and the Allies are already victorious, the curtain is only to rise upon the closing scenes of the great world-drama, the last act of which is an utterly defeated Germany and a triumphant allied world.

"In the first place the Allies are absolutely self-sufficient in mental, inventional and collateral powers. I can make a list of names of great thingers, writers, discoverers, explorers, inventors—leaders in every line and form of human thought and endeavor, covering every aspect of man's achievement as an intellectual being and never mention a single German name.

"The culture of the world of the Allies is absolutely complete without a single contradiction, marked "Made in Germany."

"To cite but few great names and their corresponding achievements: Fulton and his steamboat; Holland and his submarine; Morse, the telegraph; Bell, the telephone, Edison, a score of electrical triumphs; Howe, the sewing machine; Whitney, the cotton gin; McCormick, the binder; Dr. Wells and Dr. Norton, anesthetics; Farmer, the electric car. Americans all.

motive; Lee, the knitting machine; Lister, antiseptics; Davy, safety lamp; motive; ee, the knitting machine; Lister, antiseptics; Davy, safety lamp; Watts, the steam engine; Simpson, chloroform.

"The French have given the world the balloon, photography and with Mme. Curri, a Polish woman, radium." The French built the Suez canal, and began the Panama canal—finished by Americans. And it was a Frenchman—Pasteur—that gave the world the cure of hydrophobia.

"And the Italian contributions to world achievement among the Allies. Marconi gave us the wireless (his mother was Irish); Galileo—the telescope, and Galoani, the magnetic battery. Even the Chinese gave us the mariner's compass, gunpowder and the earliest art of printing.

"This practically covers the mechanical equipment of the world without mentioning a single German name.

Discovery and Exploration

"It is a remarkable statement to make but it is true, that this German military autocracy that leaped upon the world, with its watchword, "World power"—has not belied it—the name of a single German explorer or discoverer of a square yard of the whole planet. It was an Italian, Columbus (or perhaps the Norsemen) who discovered America. And Marco Polo, an Italian, who first visited China; Vasa de Gama, a Portuguese, who first rounded Cape of Good Hope; Livingstone, a Scotchman, and Stanley, an American, who explored the interior of Africa; Peary, an American, who explorer the Artic regions, and Shackleton, an Englishman, who made the memorable exploration of the South Pole regions; and the Dutch who explored the East Indies.

"Nor have the Germans preserved civilization from attack. It was the Greeks who beat back the Persains at Thermopylae, and the French who resisted the Huns at Chalons in 457 A. D., and again the French who resisted the Saracens at Tours in 732; and the Poles under Sobieski that broke up the Turkish onslaugh in Europe in 1683, and the Spanish that finally drove the Moors out of Europe.

"The Protestnat Reformation is claimed as a German product. But with strict historic accuracy, let it be remembered that John Wyclif, 'the moving star of the reformation, was an Englishman; and John Huss, burned in 1415, a Boheman, that is a Czeck-Slovak, now in rebellion against their German oppressors; that the Hugnenots were French, and that Grasmes, whom the Monks said "laid the egg that hatched Luther," was a Hollander.

"In the world of literature, science, art, sculpture, philosophy, music, the merest schoolboy can make a list of name to complete the world's culture and never list a German name. Virgil, Horace, Juvenal—Roman, Homer, Socrates, Plato, Aristatle — Greek. Boccacco, Dante, Tasso—Italian. Crevaules—Spanish. Hans Anderson—a Dane. Tolstoi and Gorky, Russians. Moliere, Racine, Hugo, Sue, Dumas, La Fontaine, Rodin—French.

"A list of the great names in English literature would fill a page—Chaucer, Chakespeare, Milton, Addison, Pope, Byron, Shelley, Browning, Coleridge, Tennyson, Elliot, Scott, Burns (Scotch) and oMore and Goldsmith (Irish). Add to this the English-language literature of American writers—Poe, Bryant, Emerson, Lowell, Hawthorne, Longfellow, Whittier, Whitman, Jack London—just to mention a few.

"Such an array of intellectual giants in every field of human endeavor in the culture of the Allies demonstrates that their cultural equipment is invincible. The Allies have the brains to maintain the cultural leadership of mankind. They do not need the 'kultur' that raped Belgium, assassinated Serbia, leagued with Turkey to massacre Armenia, and made the Brest-Letovsk treaty (?) German 'kultur' will go down to inevitable defeat before the true 'culture' of the civilization—the Allies.

The Physical Resources of the Allies

The physical and economic resources of the Allies are enormous and almost incalculable. The whole western hemisphere and the whole of Africa is in the thands of the Allies. The Allies practically control the cotton, wool, rubber, copper, coffee, coal, iron and other mineral products of the world. Usher declares that three out of our of the great industrial fabrics, four out of five of the great agricultural areas, three out of four of the great steel plants, and two out of three of the great shipbuilding plants are controlled by the Allies. Add to this the fact that every German ship is swept from all the oceans of the world by the Allied fleets and the victory of the Allies is as sure as that night follows day. These enormous economic resources are not marshalled yet. The way we are now raising our armies, building ships and conserving food is a hint of what the Allies can yet do to make victory inevitable and place final world peace at the command of a league of the Allies.

"Now add to this intellectual power and to these material resources the moral purpose of the Allies and we can never be defeated. We fight for freedom, for justice, for liberty. We fight for democracy—the highest and noblest achievement of mankind. We fight for that which alone can make civilization endurable, without which life would not be worth living. In such a cause we may loose many a battle and suffer the loss of many a hero, but in the end the greatest military victory will be achieved by the invincible Allies."

TELLS WHAT WOMEN CAN DO FOR NATION
—Grace M. E.

Speaking on "The Nation's Call on Its Girlhood" at Grace C. E. church yesterday morning, Miss Maude Wolff, general secretary of Fresno Y. W. C. A., who occupied the pulpit, showed how women were sharing in the work of winning the war.

The old reluctance to see women enter industrial work was passing away, she said, and the man power of the nation was being added to by the advent of womn into war work.

"Americans have always been reluctant to see women shoulder economic burdens, she said. A member of an Eastern industrial commission once said, 'I would if I could exclude women from industry altogether.' This might have been called chivalry at one time, but today we all agree it is all out of place. The world's call today is to the world's girlhood. Even the stupid procrastinator who suggested at the beginning of the war, "Man power can meet the demand," today acknowledges his mistake.

Women Workers.

We have thirty-five million people in gainful occupations, one million and a half of these have gone to fight with our allies. Great Britain had twenty million-in-gainful-occupation and has taken five million of those for the army. The contribution of France is much larger. Our last draft makes us realize that the percentage of soldiers now to be taken from industry will probably increase from about 3 per cent, which it now is, to perhaps over 25 per cent, as it is in France. America must squarely face the fact that our industrial man power is seriously short. Ten million women in the United States are now occupied in gainful occupations. One and one-half million women are engaged on war orders making supplies for the direct support of our boys at the fighting front. Another half million women are speeding up because their industry is immediately affected by the war. As rapidly as our army increases just so rapidly must increase this second line of defense. Just as we must give every atom of our best thought for the protection and morale of these boys, so must we as a nation awake to the fact that one of our great problems is the adequate care and moral protection of these girls.

New Opportunities.

Because of the general reluctance of American men in general to have women in industry, American girls to my mind are in a peculiar position to come to

SHOWS LEGACY OF TITUS TO CHURCH
—First Presbyterian

"The Legacy of Brother Titus," was the subject of the sermon by President Warren H. Landon, D. D., of San Francisco Theological Seminary, at the First Presbyterian church yesterday morning. Dr. Landon occupied the pulpit in the absence on leave of Rev. George F. Sevier.

Dr. Landon in showing the influence of Titus on the Christian church, and claimed that the work of Titus was a supplement to that of Paul. The personality of Titus was shown in the democratic spirit that made him the companion of the apostle. This democratic spirit, Dr. Landon said, was now being shown in the present world war, where the common bond of religion embraced all the divisions of churches. Out of this war, Dr. Landon said, there may come a union of the churches based on the common beliefs, with the differences of the churches less accentuated.

Dr. Landon took the character of Titus, whom St. Paul affectionately called his brother, and showed the lessons his life might suggest in these modern times.

"Much of the Bible," he said, "is biography. It is generally admitted that biographical study is profitable. Thomas Carlyle said: 'Great men, taken up in any way, are profitable company.'

"Among other traits Titus had an individuality of his own. He was not a poor copy of some other man. He was an administrator. His work was a supplement to Paul's own. God does not make men alike, all in the same mould.

Democracy of Early Church

"He was the companion of an apostle. The early church was democratic. They had common interests. Brutherly love prevailed. They were one great family in Christ. May something like it again be witnessed in the Christian church. The war is bringing about great changes. The allied nations are closer together than ever in their history, the bond being strengthened by their united effort for the freedom, happiness and peace of the world. Similar changes are taking place in civil life. Class distinctions are breaking down in view of the fact that the men from all kinds of homes are serving the same great cause together on the bloody battlefields of France.

Unity of Common Purpose

"The church cannot come through the conflict without approaching nearer the great ideals of the apostolic church. What a jumble-all there is already over there. An English Catholic priest receiving the confession of a dying French Catholic soldier, a Protestant young woman acting as interpreter, and the place a Y. M. C. A. hut. Catholic priests, Protestant ministers and Jewish rabbis are serving as chaplains in regiments where officers and men are of largely different faiths. We do not anticipate the union of such diverse elements, but surely they will hereafter have a larger respect for and interest in each other.

Union Through Conflict

"A large number of our best ministers are in some kind of war service. When they come out of the great jumble-all what will be their attitude toward the divisions of Christendom? Some think the war will bring about Chritsian union. Through the providence of God we may be sent by the conflict deeper into God's word and to a higher plane of Christian living, two essentials to genuine Christian union. I love the Presbyterian church and its great history. I have given to it a nearly forty years ministry. I should see it pass with a pang. But if there should providentially arise through the agency of the war a greater church, that will more rapidly evangelize the world for which Christ died, I will heartily give it the remainder of my ministry.

Titus the Helper

"Titus was the helper of a greater man. Such people are needed today, persons who can with energy and absence of jealousy occupy secondary positions. There was good reading in General Pershing's general order the past week, in which instead of taking credit to himself he gave it to his men. 'You have shown that American initiative and energy are as fit for the tasks of war as for the pursuits of peace. You have justly won unstinted praise from our allies and the eternal gratitude of our countrymen.' All honor to Generals Foch, Haig, Pershing and the others. But credit belongs also to every man in the ranks. Every man counts. It is true in the church. Every faithful man, woman and child counts. It is a mistake to speak of Dr. Brown's church, of Dr. Smith's church. It is no man's church. It is rather every man's church. It is the church of the modest, retiring woman who does her best. It is the church of the quietest man, who is always in his place.

"Reference was also made to Titus' impress as a teacher, and to the legacy left by every teacher in Sunday school or public school, who adds to the knowledge of the subject the power of a life in Christ."

TEJON DESTITUTION DESCRIBED BY OFFICIAL

Remnants of Tribe on Beale Ranch Can Barely Live

New Syndicate Ignores Rights of Aborigines—Only 80 Left

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 1. — Conditions among the Tejon Indians, who live in the canyon four miles above the Tejon ranch headquarters of the Otis-Chandler Syndicate, thirty-seven miles south of Bakersfield, are very bad, according to John G. Terrell, United States government inspector of Indian reservations. He has just visited the tribe, finding some eighty of them alive, with a chief more than 100 years old. The homes are adobe huts with dirt floors, and there is only the barest necessities of life, just enough from day to day in most of the homes. The huts are meagerly furnished and generally in crude Indian fashion. Only the able bodied Indian braves are employed on the ranch and they receive about $40 a month.

The Indians do not own the land they have been occupying for generations and when Truxtom Beale sold the ranch to the Los Angeles syndicate, there was no clause in the deed providing for a home for the Indians. Afterward the Tejon ranch exacted a dollar a year lease from the tribe and they were too poor to pay. Supt. J. J. Lopez of the ranch paying it himself. General Edward F. Beale, who died twenty-five years ago, secured the Tejon land grant before the Civil War, and afterward purchased lands from Mexico. He said he would provide for the Indians, and he cared for them during his lifetime and his son Truxtum also looked after them.

When the Beales got the ranch there were over a thousand Indians alive, but the tribe dwindled to less than 100. Only a few days ago three of one family died from destitution and last Sunday a young brave and his two sisters were murdered by another Indian. Some of the braves arein the United States army.

Among the conditions, Superintendent Terrell said he found was that the ranch owners objected to the Indians having a school on the ranch. He said:

Three Children Killed.

"On reaching Bakersfield Thursday, on my way back to San Carlos, I learned that there had been some recent natural deaths and a killing of three Indian children by an enraged, drunken young Indian of the Tejon band of Indians, and consequently more or less excitement among the citizens there. I deemed it advisable to make a hurried trip to the Tejon ranch, inasmuch as there was some controversy as to the probable needs of these Indians. My investigation was directed more in looking into that feature and as a result will state that the conditions of these Indians have but little, if any, improved since my first visit here about two years ago. To properly appreciate the true situation of these Indians it should be understood that they are practically all of them natives of this rancheria, having been born and spend most of their lives within the present ranchero home. They are better acquainted with livestock industry than with any other line of employment.

"There are now about eighty Indians in the Tejon tribe, of which Juan Lazada is chief. Of these, only two are now permanently employed by the Tejon Ranch Syndicate, and sixteen have been employed at different times during the past eighteen months. These have earned a gross amoung in that time of $5,018.98, according to the ranch statement. The oldest member of the tribe is over 100 years of age, and there are many members too old and incapacitated for work. Of the eighty there are about a dozen or fifteen small children. I could not tell you of these exactly because several of the families were away working, picking fruit, etc. In the little gulch where the Indians live there are in all twelve homes. Each of these has its little garden. There is no stock owned by the Indians, except that most of them own a horse, or perhaps two, and one Indian has three. They have no other stock. These Indians would be successful stock raisers if given the opportunity, as that has been the occupation of their tribe for generations; there are no better riders anywhere than the Tejon Indians.

Very Little Fod.

"So far as I could discover, there is no charity distributed by the Tejon company to these poor Indians. Their homes are about as destitute of household furniture and effects and the necessaries of life as anything I have ever seen, and I have visited many Indian tribes in the different states. In one home, where five Indians lived, they had on hand for food about four pounds of flour and perhaps ten pounds of meal. In one home they had supplies for perhaps a month, while in most of the houses they did not have over one week's supply, if they had that.

"Their beddin consists of rags, old sacks and pieces of old blankets and quilts. Their clothing showed plainly that it was old clothes which had been given them, and was in rags. A few had the cheapest kind of iron bedsteads, others had bed frames which they had made themselves of pieces of board, while most of them slept right on the bare earth floor of their huts.

"The Tejon Indians have believed all the time that they had a right to this land. When General Beale went to Mexico to buy the grant, there were more than a thousand Indians in this tribe, and several of the head men went with General Beale into Mexico. Beale stated at the time of buying the land that he proposed to look out for the Indians, and he did take care of them, preferring them above all other help for labor on the ranch and looking out for the old and children. His son, Truxtum Beale, followed his father's idea of aiding the Indians to some extent and took care of them. Then he sold out to the present ranch corporation and went east to live. The corporation took from them all their rights and ceased to employ them, except those few who were of actual money value to it. They were denied the right to own livestock, except the few horses to cultivate their little gardens. The ranch pays $40 a month to the two Indians working for them and for the same labor pays a Mexican $50 or $60, and white men earn as high as $3 a day.

"The corporation has only used the Indians to its advantage. The ranch syndicate objects to a school."

EAST SIDE USERS GET WATER HEARING

Rights Said to Have Been Cut Down by Interlocking Directorates

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 1.— Kern county water users under the East Side canal have had a hearing of their application for water before the State Railroad Commission, Deputy Westover presiding. H. A. Jastro, F. G. Munzer and other Kern County Land company officials testified. In view of the great interest of farmers and water users in their water rights, especially where controlled by the corporate interests, the outcome of the hearing will be awaited with interest among the ranchers of California. This is said to be the first case in which the water users under a private ditch have appealed to the State Railroad Commission to compel the private concern to supply the necessary water to save dying crops.

More than 200 farmers and ranchers from the Weed Patch-Arvin country attended the hearing which was held in the Kern county courthouse.

The crops which the farmers had planted under the expectation and in some instances at least, under the absolute assurance that they would be furnished water to mature same, and including alfalfa, barley, wheat and corn and garden products, were rapidly dying. The farmers renewed their appeal to the commission for an early consideration and through a committee waited upon the state council of defense at San Francisco and also upon Governor Stephens. The governor not only gave respectful attention, but took immediate steps to advance the time for attention at the hands of the railroad commission.

Books Brought In

Of course, it was impossible to present the case in its entirety in that time. The farmers, however, made the best of their opportunity and called on H. A. Jastro, general manager of the Kern County Land company, and F. G. Munzer, the secretary, and W. F. Whitaker, the engineer, for information as to the situation. Mr. Munzer, under the orders of the commission, appeared with the stockbooks of the water companies involved and was required to submit himself as a witness.

From contracts made before the Kern County Land company had established its technical control of the water distribution, it was shown that the East Side canal was built in the main by money furnished by the land owners, which it was intended to serve, but that after its construction was completed with this aid, that the Kern County Land company acquired all the stock in the canal company and then imposed its arbitrary control.

The original contracts with the land owners required the canal company to furnish all the water which may hereafter be required for the irrigation of the lands, provided, however, that the whole amount of water furnished in any one year shall not be in excess of a continuous flow of 1-250 cubic feet per second per acre. This would mean approximately 2.85 acre feet per year, or at least four irrigations. The original contracts also provided that the canal company should be permitted to sell from the canal 100 cubic feet and that when the water available fell to less than 100 cubic feet that the water users were to pro rate as to the deficiency.

Contract Cut Down?

The canal company, which both Mr. Munzer and Mr. Jastro testified was simply an agency (dummy) of the Kern County Land company, attempted to urge that this water right, based on 100 cubic feet per second for the canal, was by contract made with the Kern Island canal acting through its directors, consisting, it is stated, of employes of the Kern County Land company, with the same men as the directors of the East Side Canal company, reduced to 30 cubic feet per second and therefore, that the water users under the canal were entitled to receive only about five-sixths of an acre foot for the entire season, and that that arbitrary allotment had already been given to them for the year 1918.

The extent of the damage done to the water users because of the failure to deliver the agreed supply of water and availability of the water supply in the river and from the Kern Island canal were not gone into fully because of the lack of time. It was brought out that the Kern Island canal, under the distributing system of the Kern County Land company, was given the absolute first right to 360 cubic feet per second of waters of Kern river; that its use through the Kern Island canal system outside of the East Side canal was an unlimited use; that the users generally got what they asked for, and that there was much evidence of over-irrigation and consequent water-logging.

The water users say that with the showing they can make, the railroad commission will issue an order directing the distribution of this first right of the 360 cubic feet not to the excessive use of the lands under the Kern Island canal in which are lands largerly owned by the Kern County Land company and Miller & Lux, but shall require such water to the distributed so as to include service on the lands under the East Side canal.

The engineer for the Kern County Land company, Mr. Whitaker, testified on the stand that the distributing system in its present form failed to deliver more than 60 per cent of the diversion to places of use.

Mr. and Mrs. Mackintosh of Ramona who have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. J. E. Bachelor and family, were taken to a Hanford hospital Wednesday on account of serious illness. A few days ago a sort of epidemic invaded the Bachelor household, Mrs. Bachelor, little Sidney Bachelor and Mr. and Mrs. Mackintosh falling victims. Medical aid was promptly called but the trouble seemed very stubborn to control, especially in the cases of Mr. Mackintosh and little Sidney Bachelor. At the present time the two women are apparently out of danger but the other two cases are yet critical. So far the doctors have not been able to definitely trace the cause of the illness but there is some intimation that the disease may be diagnosed as typhoid.

B. M. McMahen returned Monday from a ten days' vacation at Long Beach.

Miss Clara Robinson resigned her position in the Lakeview school and up to this time the trustees have not definitely elected a teacher.

The other meetings will be devoted to Child Welfare. It is urged that the date of this meeting will not be overlooked by the club members.

His initial trip to the battle field to pick up the wounded was made on a night when an electric storm raged furiously and the rain fell in torrents, his only light being the lightning flashes. Ned's letters express unmistakable desire to get at the Boches though in his present capacity he is not permitted to carry arms.

A few days ago Mr. and Mrs. Miller received from Ned a German helmet and belt. It being the first sent home by a Stratford boy, much interest is manifested in these souvenirs.

Working Girls Do Not Go to the Devil---Lazy Ones Do

Girls who go wrong do not do so because they are workers, but because they don't want to work. The devil traps the idle and lazy by thousands to one of the ambitious, trained working girls. Look around you. Notice the young people who are just drifting—just making a living—nothing more.

PARENTS: The responsibility is yours. You may not need the money that your girl can earn, but it is not a mere matter of money. Your girl needs the wholesome atmosphere of the business office—needs the training that will make her more self-reliant and independent in time to come.

LABOR DAY

As President Wilson says: "Labor Day, 1918, is not like any Labor Day that we have known." It is not merely a more important Labor day, it is a new sort of a Labor day. It is a day not so much for the defiant proclamation of rights, as for united consecration to a duty. We are all soldiers today in a common cause, but none are more vital to that cause, not even the riflemen in the trenches, than the army of labor which marches today. It is in this spirit Labor marches. If in this spirit also, Labor will work to the end, the war is won.

But if this day is a dedication of labor to service, it ought also to be a dedication of the rest of us, not to war service merely, but to justice to labor in that service. Wage-justice, the organized part of the laborers will see to it that they get for themselves and competition will probably give it to the others. But social justice is more than wages. It involves, in the very first instance, the recognition of the right of labor to organize, in its own way, and to be dealt with through its organization. The war is compelling this recognition. Before we finish, it will involve the recognition of the right of labor to a voice in the management and control and a share in the profits of business. It will involve protection to the laborer, by social insurance, when he can not earn. It will involve the breaking up of land monopoly and a machinery of credit to finance the farm laborer or farm renter into becoming a farm owner. And it will involve a more systematic and energetic attack of the unemployment problem than we have ever known.

Labor marches today to dedicate itself to war. The rest of us, who are onlookers, will do well to dedicate ourselves, simultaneously to social justice for labor.

HENEY DISQUALIFIED

The Democratic voters declared they wanted Rolph and not Heney. But the Democratic politicians do not want Rolph. Therefore, in conference assembled, they have resolved to ask the Supreme Court to nominate Heney as the Democratic candidate.

Of course the Supreme Court can do nothing of the sort. It can confirm the nomination of Rolph, if it can find any way of setting aside the law which takes away that nomination after the Democrats have voted it. Or it can sustain the law, which forbids any Democratic nomination, and thereby leave the Democratic politicians to put in some other Democrat, but not Heney or Woolwine, on the ballot by petition. But it can not put Heney on the ballot, either by the language of this law, or by any American rule of construction of election law in general.

The law of nominations, under the direct primary, does not differ from the law of elections. Nomination is election to a candidate. As to elections, the English rule of construction is, under the decisions of Parliament, that when a candidate is ineligible and clear notice of that ineligibility is before the voters at the polls, then the votes which are cast in spite of this ineligibility, and in defiance of notice of it, are to be treated as not having been cast at all, and the election is determined by the majority of the remainder. But this is not and never has been the rule in America. The American rule is that if the majority candidate is ineligible, he is excluded by his ineligibility, while the next-highest candidate is disqualified by the fact that he was not elected. This has been the rule from the beginning, in Congress, and is the rule followed by practically all the courts in practically all the states. The only exceptions of which we know are some obscure early cases in Indiana. It has always been followed in California, including one case (the Free case) decided under the direct primary law.

The statute by which our own assemblyman and would-be congressman, Henry Hawson, made California unsafe for Democracy is perfectly clear. It declares, in express language, that a candidate receiving the majority vote under the circumstances of this primary shall not be the nominee, and shall not be permitted to run at all, even by petition, as an independent. It also declares in express language that the vacancy so created "shall not be filled." If this law is law, then there is not and can not be a Democratic nominee. If it is not law, then, under the remainder of the law (which has already been sustained by the court) whoever has the majority of the votes is the nominee. And that is, of course, Rolph.

We remember well the case of the Republican politicians when they were seeking to keep Taft electors off the ballot by pretending to try to put them on. So they went in tremendous dudgeon before the Supreme Court with a case which they had purposely made so bad that they knew the court could not sustain it if it tried. We wonder if these Democratic politicians are smart enough to be at the same trick. They do not want Rolph. Nobody wants him but the majority of the Democratic voters, and these Democratic politicians have as little respect as the old-time Republican bosses had for the right of the voters of a party to control it. They know that if they made a case on behalf of Rolph they might have a fighting chance to win it. They know that if they make it in behalf of Heney they have no case at all. So, they make their noise and stir up the indignation of the state. Then they spring their real candidate, whoever he is, and seek to ride him in on that wave.

A DISAPPOINTMENT

Friends and supporters of Governor Stephens will experience a painful disappointment on learning of the summary discharge, obviously for political reasons, of Corporation Commissioner H. L. Carnahan. Not that it will hurt Carnahan or that it would be of any public concern if it did. Having done his full share and more for the state in an office which he did not seek, but had accepted at a financial sacrifice out of zeal for public service, Carnahan was preparing to leave as soon as certin pending matters were settled. The wrong is not even in depriving the public service of an exceptionally valuable official, since that loss would have come in a few weeks anyway. It is in setting up a standard of petty personal politics as the tenure of office in the state administration of California.

Carnahan's offense evidently was that he favored another candidate than Stephens for the Republican nomination for governor. Even Governor Stephens will admit that this was the right of a private citizen. But he has, in this conspicuous way, notified every public servant in California that it is not a right of a state appointee under his administration. It is a warning. "Vote for Stephens or lose your job." And while the rule may not be applied thus summarily to everybody, the rule at least is established, and every officeholder will disregard it at his peril. Perhaps it is not even an unfair rule of the game of politics. The disappointment is at finding politics treated as a game. We had been hoping to make something better of it, in California.

The selection of Carnahan as the example is a particularly egregious blunder. For here was an official who had made a conspicuous success of a particularly delicate and difficult job. When the "blue sky" law was enacted business was afraid of it. Its desirability, to suppress fraud, was conceded, but there was fear its powers would be used also to obstruct legitimate business, or to promote favoritism between businesses. The fears were not groundless. The wrong man, in the first operation of the law, could easily have justified them. Carnahan has done just the opposite. Using his office without fear or favor to suppress illegitimate business methods and enterprises, he has also used it constructively to promote and protect legitimate ones.

Courage, justice, intelligence, efficiency, tactfulness and consideration, coupled with a genius for tremendously hard work, have characterized Commissioner Carnahan's administration of the office. These qualities, with an unusually winning personality, have made Carnahan not only one of the most successful, but one of the most popular officials in California. This is not our opinion merely, biased as it may be by friendship, but is the unanimous judgment of the leading business men of California. Doubtless it is Governor Stephens' opinion.

The removal, then, is a clear enforcement, on an unconfussable case, of the rule that a public official must personally support Governor Stephens in his personal aspirations to office, or lose his head. Or, if there is any other possible interpretation, Governor Stephens owes it to himself and to those who would like to look to him as the leader of a movement with higher ideals than this, to make that interpretation unmistakably clear. So far he has refused any explanation at all.

We are very, very sorry.

ALFRED SANDERSON.

Plucky youth who faced death second time.

(Special to The Republican.)

SANGER, Sept. 1.—Alfred Sanderson, son of Mrs. Nora Sanderson of this city, is reported missing in action in France. A telegram from the War Department late Saturday night informed Mrs. Sanderson that her son was missing August 6. The family believes he was taken prisoner, as he had recently returned to the fighting line from the hospital. The fight in which he disappeared is thought to have been one of the fierce battles in which the Germans were driven out of the Marne salient. He was wounded in one of the battles, and sent to a Paris hospital about two months ago. Allie Sanderson, as he is generally known, went to Camp Lewis with the draft of May 1917. He left camp for France September 5 of last year. He is about 21 years old. Besides his mother, a sister lives in Sanger.

HERTLING LOOKS FORWARD SADLY

Fears Internal Strife Will Accompany German Defeat in War

AMSTERDAM, Saturday, Aug. 31.—Count Von Hertling, the imperial German chancellor, today expressed anxiety over the outlook for the future in an address to a delegation of representatives of the Catholic Students Union. According to a Berlin dispatch, the chancellor spoke of the sacrifices and the demands of the war and declared in addition to the sacrifices of blood "ther are difficulties of food and clothing and manifold deprivations at the present time and I am anxious concerning the outlook for the future."

War, the chancellor said, was and is the greatest possible experience for the nation. It manifests itself, he said, among Germanys enemies in the form of hatred, "bordering on insanity," while among the Germans it displays its effects principally internally in strengthening the inclination to criticism against the government. The criticism intensified party antagonism ,the chancellor added ,and he warned the students that "therein, gentlemen, there is undoubtedly danger."

"The army command regards the military situation with complete calm, even though it has been obliged for strategical reasons to withdraw our lines at several points. Our glorious troops will continue to beat back the tremendous onset of the enemy arms until our adversaries perceive that they can not destroy us and are therefore, on their part, ready for an understanding."

Fresno's Yesterdays

Taken From the Files of the FRESNO REPUBLICAN

Forty Years Ago

The Hook and Ladder Company have had the tires set and their truck thoroughly overhauled. The company is prosperous and always on the alert for fires.

Studer is prospering, as may be seen by the new line of goods for gentlemen's suits just arrived. The fall of the year, new clothes and marriages are always associated together.

The long talked of race between Cabrera's horse, "Wild Bill," and the Visalia black mare "Kitty" as run at Firebaugh's August 25th, and won by the horse. The stakes were $500 a side.

A Danish Colony for Fresno is in contemplation, particulars of which we hope to be able to give soon.

A number of young ladies, some of them accomplished musicians, have consented to assist the Literary Society in its exercises at Magnolia Hall tonight, with both vocal and instrumental music. A general invitation is extended to all.

Twenty Years Ago

The members of Company C, who left this city in answer to their country's call during the latter part of June, are expected to come marching home the latter part of the week. As stated in the telegraphic columns of the Republican, President McKinley made an order mustering out the Sixth and Seventh California regiments. The Sixth regiment, to which Company C belongs, is stationed at the Benicia barracks, but will go to San Francisco to be mustered out of service.

Ten Years Ago.

There is in process of organization in this city, by ten or fifteen well known capitalists, who for the present do not wish their identity disclosed, a business corporation with articles to be filed in about a fortnight, placing the capitalization at $100,000 and the subscribed stock to be local money. The company will go into the enterprise of planting a eucalyptus forest on a large commercial basis. If all goes well the company will buy options on a tract of approximately 5000 acres of valley land in this county and set out the entire holding to eucalypti.

CONCERT CLOSES SUMMER PROGRAM

The nineteen-eighteen season's offer for Cuyler Leonard's Band, and there are lamentations in this Sunkist ruisin land; the City Dads and Supervisors say the treasury's low, and therefore Sunday concerts at the Courthouse park must go; and we who've gone religiously since they were first begun will be mostlonesome-like and sad, now that they're dead and done. It was a pleasant treat for us—a pleasant treat and fine to wander out on Sunday nights when lights began to shine, and get a seat among good friends, from somewhere roundabout, and listen to the music while the kids would play and shout; it did not seem to matter much if all the day'd been hot, out there around that bandstand was a cool and pleasant spot, with leafy branches overhead, and softly shining lights, and scads and scads of pretty girls in reds and blues and whites. And little girls were there in shouls, with ribbon in their hair, some of them most brunettish, while some were light and fair, but all of them with pleasure a-shining in their eye, especially when some old guy a Red Cross cone would buy, and tell them most respectfully that he would like to treat, and all he asked of them was just to sit and smile and eat. But last night was the last of it until another year, and near ten thousand folks were there to sit and look and hear; we sat up close and sweaty on the benches and we stood like sardines in a small that can, so we could hear right good, and every number that was played we'd clap our hands and shout till Leader Leonard on the stand would have to turn about and bow, with pleasure on his face, and then play some encore to satisfy the multitude, who wanted more and more. Virginia Biddlecom was there with pretty golden hair, and sang, in sweet soprano voice, "A Baby's Twilight Prayer," and just ahead of that she sang another ballad fine, a tuneful ballad that we liked, entitled "Lass o'-Mine"; a-lot-of-good selections were rendered by the band, a lot of tunes that made us think of Uncle Sammie's land, but the one that caught the fancy of the crowd and made it yell was "Stars and Stripes," by Sousa, which the band played mighty well. The season stopped last night, for good—there'll be no more this year; and Sunday nights from now on are sure to be darned drear. But we will hope and pray and trust we'll live a twelve-month more, so that we'll hear the band again, with program and encore.

had been repudiated by his own party, as he was.

"It has been suggested that there are decisions by the courts of last resort that in a general election where the majority candidate is disqualified that the minority candidate is not thereby elected.

"Such doctrines can have no application to a primary election for the selection of nominees on a party ticket, as that is purely a local affair. Certainly the voters are in no worse position in having the name of a candidate who received less than a majority of the total vote cast at the primary printed on the ticket than they would be if a blank was placed thereon, and, finally, at the general election the voter has a right to express his choice where a majority or plurality vote may be determinative."

WILD RUMORS IN GERMANY

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 1.—Rumors that Field Marshal Von Hindenburg has committed suicide, that the whole German army has gone over to the Anglo-French forces and that the British fleet has attacked and destroyed Helgoland have become so widespread in the Essen district that the commandant of that town has issued a proclamation advising the people not to believe 'extravagant rumors."

CAUGHT SHOOTING CRAPS

John Mooney and James Elliott were arrested at the Doris rooming house on I street yesterday on the charge of gambling. They were shooting craps and were caught in the act by Sergeant Fornes and Patrolmen Hulbert and Sayre, who made the arrest.

ARRESTED FOR SEDITIOUS TALK

Saying that America would ask for peace before Germany would, and that the Americans would never reach Berlin, led to the arrest of E. Wrasse, a former millwright of the Sperry Flour company, at the Courthouse grounds during the band concert last night.

Quite a large crowd gathered about Wrasse when he made the remarks. He was arrested by Patrolman Tift and is held for the board of investigation.

The witnesses were Robert Anderson of the Valley Grill and U. R. Nelson of Clovis.

TELLS WHAT WOMEN CAN DO

this "thrust-upon-them task," with greater enthusiasm, better ideas and higher ideals, all of which we as a nation must conserve. We American women have given to our American Red Cross three million five hundred and seventy-four thousand knitted articles. Besides this we have in volunteer work given two million dollars' worth of service in the Red Cross sewing rooms. To thousands of girls all over our land will come new lines of service.

War Service Centers.

The Young Women's Christian Association Hostess House is known all over our land. Great and useful as this work is, it is perhaps no more worth while than that done in the eighty-three industrial War Service Centers, where our organization stands to quickly and successfully plan emergency houses, rest and recreation rooms, and generally try to meet the spiritual needs of the lives of at least some of this million and a half of girls which forms America's second line of defense.

How well did the Hebrew poet and philosopher understand national life when he prayed that our daughters might be as corner stone hewn after the fashion of a palace. The world of tomorrow will discover itself, in spite of the war and calamity of this day, to be exactly the kind of a world that the girls who are the leaders of today make it. The corner stones of our nation are now as they were with the ancient Hebrews—the daughters. It is my glad responsibility to be the representative of an organization that is throwing itself into the very heat of the greatest work of today. Most of our associations do not hang our service flags, but from out every association, Fresno included, have gone young women by the score to serve in one capacity or another in the great adventure.

Fresno Workers.

A member of the Fresno Business Women's Club is now on her way over there to do her bit for the Red Cross. While in San Francisco she was talking with a middle-aged woman who was giving cheerful, untiring work every day in the sewing rooms. Our club member mentioned that she expected soon to be in France. The woman looked into her face and surprised our club girl by saying, "I wish you might say a prayer on my boy's grave." This cheerful worker had one son who had enlisted in the Canadian army, dead in France, and another fighting in the trenches. Such women, those who have given their all, and will never cease to give, are the same women who are most sympathetically thinking and working today for the great army of girls who today and tomorrow must fill the places of men all over this land.

R. Edgren COLUMN

Camp Grant, Ill.

For two days I have been watching the athletic work in this great military camp, where Capt. Lewis Omer, the famous college coach, is athletic director, and Fred Dyer is boxing instructor.

"Treat 'em rough" is the slogan here. Captain Omer's theory is that fighting men are not made by young ladies' boarding school methods. Every game played has a fighting turn. And how the boys do like it! There are over fifty thousand athletes in this camp just now, and the trainloads leaving day by day are replaced by new thousands of sturdy country boys who will in turn — quickly be made over into real fighting men.

Boxing is the great sport in camp. What do you think of three thousand real glove fights a day for five days? That was the latest fighting apart. General Martin, who believes in boxing as a training to develop fighting men, said that he wanted every soldier in camp to have at least one experience in a real ring fight—and it was done. In the following five days there were fifteen thousand fights—fifty thousand men with the gloves on in real contests. Scores of knockouts—and in spite of the strenuousness of it all, not a man received any injury worthy of note.

Capt. Omer, formerly all enthusiasm for track and field sports, has become one of the greatest advocates of boxing.

"If I go back to teaching at some college when the war is over," he told me, "I will refuse to go to any college that will not agree to make boxing one of its major sports. Boxing ranks next to football as a sport to develop character; perhaps even ahead of football. It is a splendid physical exercise, and it gives a man perfect confidence and ability to take care of himself. I think after the war we will have universal physical training for boys and young men, and we will have boxing everywhere in the United States. Every man who comes back from the war is going to be a boxing enthusiast, and no Congressman or other public official who opposes boxing will have a chance of election."

Fred Dyer has made good as boxing instructor at Grant. Dyer has an interesting history. His father was an Irish athlete and boxer and his mother a Welsh singer. When he was a boy his father taught him boxing and wanted him to become a boxer, and his mother fought him to sing and wanted him to become a singer. The result is that Dyer fights and sings equally well, and he has traveled around the world fighting and singing in different countries. In Australia he fought twenty rounds with the great Les Darcy.

When the war began Dyer tried to enlist in Canada and was turned down when the army examiners found that he had an injured right knee. He could box, but went lame on a hike. Later, he tried several times to enlist in the United States. His brothers are fighting in the British armies in France, and Fred wanted to be there too. Once he managed to pass the examiners and get to Camp Upton, where he lasted three weeks before his bad knee was discovered. Out again, he applied for a position as boxing instructor. He was ent to Camp Grant.

I found Dyer just as he was about to begin work with a class of 300 men. It was hot. A Sahara blast was blowing clouds of dust through the camp. The miles of pine board buildings were obscured in a yellow haze of shimering heat waves and dancing dust devils. Here and there columns of men marched. From directly overhead the sun blazed down as if its rays were centered on that one part of the earth's surface.

Dyer stood on a raised platform. In a minute or two the officers had marched a company and a half of men into position in front of him and the work began. On the platform, stepping, thrusting vicious blows into the imaginary opponent before him, giving out orders sharply, Dyer put the men through a number of preliminary boxing movements. There were jabs and thrusts and uppercuts. A jab—a right cross—and then the sharp order to "carry on;" at which the men advanced step by step, striking furiously blow after blow until the salt sweat ran down their red faces in streams, and the dust they kicked up inclosed them like a fog. It was an impressive sight—300 men coming forward in a mass, stamping the ground, driving their six hundred fists in furious blows.

From in front Dyer shouted:

"This one is right on the Kaiser's beak!"

And then—Yea Bo! how those boys did slam!

At the end of the boxing movements Dyer ordered the men to form around an assistant-instructor, facing outward, and to advance from the center at the command, striking out with left jabs and right hooks alternately. Then with a wink to me he ordered "about face," and sent them toward the center, striking out as before.

Here were three hundred men stepping swiftly toward a point from which the assistant instructor had discreetly disappeared.

There was no command to halt.

A soldier doesn't stop until ordered to stop.

"Carry on!" shouted Dyer. And in an instant there was the prettiest three hundred man battle royal one could wish to see, every man struggling furiously to hammer his way to the center, bare fists flailing and dust clouds enveloping all. It was breaking up into a hundred hand to hand fights when Dyer stopped the carnage. Instantly there were three hundred men filing into position again, laughing and in great good humor. These boys surely do love to fight. Yet when they came to Camp Grant very few of them had ever put up their hands to box.

In his next class Dyer varied the finishing melee a little by placing the men in two lines, facing away from each other and advancing as they struck out with jabs and hooks. Then at the command the lines turned about face and advanced toward each other, "carrying on" with smashing blows at each step. The effect was even more startling than before, for lacking a command to halt the two lines of men crashed together.

"Every man select his opponent," shouted Dyer, and for fifteen seconds there was a mix-up. Then again the comand to halt and the laughing men lined up to be dismissed. A fist fight to these boys is just a joke.

Yea Bo! These Boys Can Fight!

From Dyer's classes I went with Captain Omer down to the recreation ground of the negro regiments. Here there was fighting worth seeing, and plenty of it. I doubt that here is as much boxing to be seen of a quiet afternoon anywhere else on earth.

The big level field, about half a mile square, was covered with groups of men, playing rough war games. Most of them were fighting. These black boys are built for the game. Handling the gloves comes naturally to them. They seem more lithe and catlike in their movements than the white men. There was no awkwardness as they stepped around each other and drove home sudden blows.

War may be a tough game. But training for war is no scented bed of roses, either.

The spectators were marched into the arena under their officers, for at Camp Grant seeing boxing bouts is a part of the regular training of the men. They are supposed to learn fighting methods by looking on, and try them out later among themselves, and there is something in the notion of accustoming the men to the spirit of the ring, which is pre-eminently the spirit of battle.

GO NO FARTHER

The Evidence Is At Your Door

Fresno proof is what you want and the statement of this highly respected resident will banish all doubt.

J. B. Allen, painting contractor, 652 Inez street, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for the past five years and cheerfully tell of their worth. At times the kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and contained sediment. I had a dull ache in the small of my back and towards the latter part of the day I felt all worn out. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me relief." (Statement given January 13, 1913.)

On March 29, 1916, Mr. Allen said: "I have no occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills since giving my former statement in 1913. I consider myself completely cured."

Price 60 cents at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Allen had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

GUARDS TRAINING AT KEARNEY PARK

The Fresno Home Guards are enjoying the outing at Kearney Park to the full, the shady places of the park proving most popular on the hottest days the men have been in camp this summer. Nearly 100 answered roll call yesterday. Some stiff drills were given. The guard mount work proved interesting under new environment, and the men did a good days' work in spite of the humidity.

They will practice battle formations today, the last of the three days in camp.

Expect Big Crowd at Picnic and Dance, Games and Speaking

The quietest Labor Day in years is planned for today in Fresno. No expense will be incurred, but the workers of the community will spend the day in needed rest, in attending special services, listening to popular and patriotic music and at the picnics and the dance.

There will be no celebration in the morning hours except the services in the First Methodist church, when Dr. Will A. Bellis, the pastor, will speak to working men. The big picnic lunch at Roeding Park will begin at 12 o'clock, to be followed by an athletic meet, music, baseball and a drill by the Home Guards who will strike camp at Kearney Park to give the public exhibition drill at 2 o'clock.

J. P. Dale, representing the A. F. of L., will speak at Roeding Park at 2 o'clock. Public business of city and county will be postponed until tomorrow and stores will be closed. The labor organizations have made all arrangements for the big dance at the Fresno Auditorium at night.

KINGS CO. SUES AGAINST REEDLEY

To Prevent Sewage Flow of Peach Crop into Kings River

(Special to The Republican.)

HANFORD, Sept. 1.—An action long talked of, but just filed in the superior court, will enjoin the city of Reedley from depositing sewage into Kings river, if the prayer of the complaint therein is heard and answered by the court.

The action has virtually for its basis a ruling made not long since by the State Board of Health, which is so apparently opposed to a recent announced policy of the state board, so Dr. C. L. Scott, Kings county physician, says, that the suit will in its true sense be a case of turning the state board's own guns against it.

Shortly after publishing a ruling that dairy products derived from cattle feeding upon pastures wet by water from contaminated streams, which ruling also provided that vegetables grown on lands irrigated by water contaminated by sewage water or otherwise were not to be marketed, the State Board of Health, upon the application of the City of Reedley and the California Peach Growers, Inc., gave permission to the latter to allow the sewage from its Reedley packing plant to flow into Kings river. The State Board had some time previous given Reedley permission to deposit its sewage effluent into Kings river, though with certain restrictions. An application from the city of Kingsburg, the officials of Kings county say, for a similar privilege was also granted.

On the theory that the sewage from these sources would contaminate Kings river and that irrigating canals taking water below the points of contamination would contain contaminated water, thus rendering the products from the dairies along their course unfit for use as food, and thus setting up a barrier against the sale or home consumption of vegetables grown on the lands along the course of the said canals, the County of Kings, in conjunction with the City of Hanford, began the action just filed and to the other allegations in the complaint they add that the health of the community will be seriously menaced.

In connection with the last allegation, the ruling of the State Board of Health is again attacked, for it said that an epidemic of typhoid, or other communicable disease might readily arise from a stream contaminated through sewage.

These issues were involved in a controversy some two years ago when the Reedley sewage disposal plant was first installed and after modification of the original plant to include treatment of the sewage effluent by the infusion of chlorine, the state board finally granted Reedley the permission to runt its effluent into Kings river, a concession which by the new action is freshly disputed.

Kings county, as plaintiff in the action, is represented by R. Justin Miller, former district attorney, and by Attorney H. S. Jacobs. The City of Hanford's counsel in the case is City Attorney Frank E. Kilpatrick.

HUME MILL AVERTS LUMBER SHORTAGE

Running 20 Hours; Supplies Finishing Wood; Cut 10,000,000 Ft.

Quantities of white pine, redwood and sugar pine are coming in to Fresno from the mills at Hume. The fire which wiped out the Madary planing mill and the other stocks in the neighborhood, left Fresno and this part of the valley short on finishing lumber, and many houses have remained unfinished. The shortage is being replaced rapidly, thanks to the 20-hour work at the mountain mill.

George A. Hume, manager of the Hume-Bennett Company, said yesterday that the logging crew had been withdrawn, as enough logs had been cut to supply the mills for three months' more sawing this season. The saw mill is running two 10-hour shifts and turning out about 100,000 feet of lumber per day. The cut at Hume this year will be 10,000,000 feet, or about half the cut last year before the unfortunate fire wiped out the larger mill. The old mill ran only one shift a day. Mr. Hume said that a rumor that he had bought a mill in Maine was unfounded, and that a Maine mill would not be big enough to handle the timber here. The price of lumber, especially redwood, has advanced again, but there is limited opportunity for delivering it, and the work is not very profitable. The mills will be run to full double-shift capacity, however, to supply the urgent building needs in the valley.

TO HOLD SERVICE FOR BOY

Announcement was made yesterday that the remains of Charles Haight, the Coalinga boy who was accidentally shot on Saturday with a .22-caliber pistol which he was showing to some boy friends, will be buried in Fresno. Funeral services were held at Coalinga yesterday afternoon.

The services in Fresno will be held in the Seventh Day Adventist church at 2:30 p. m., and will be conducted by Rev. E. H. Adam, pastor of the church.

RURAL POSTMEN TO HOLD CONVENTION

California State Rural Letter Carriers will hold their annual convention at the Sequoia hotel today. Delegates are expected from all parts of the state. It is stated that there are no questions of great moment to come before the delegates.

The business of the convention begins at 9 a. m. and will be continued to 6 p. m. with an intermission of an hour at noon for lunch. In the evening the delegates will go to Roeding park for a melon feed, and will afterwards attend one of the theaters.

SMALL FIRES.

Two runs were made by the department to small fires yesterday. The first was to a residence at 1428 J street, where a gas meter got ablaze beneath the house, while the other was at M and Monterey, where a small ade was burned in the floor of a dwelling place. Both fires were in the early part of the forenoon. The damage was slight in both.

Twelve Forest Fires Follow Electric Storm

Forest fires, following an electric storm in the Sierras, broke out between Rock Creek and Fish Creek, near the San Joaquin River in the Northfork district, Thursday afternoon. The lightning set the trees on fire in twelve known places, Forester Benedict found. Other fires were in Chiquita Basin in isolated spots. Foresters found a big fire gurning at the top in one place. The fires were gotten under control very quickly, as the wind had died away. No rain fell in this region, though heavy showers fell at the Pierce mill.

Lightning struck a tree near the mill, and half the tree fell across the flume, breaking it. After an hour's shut down, the flume was repaired. The mill sent ten men to assist the rangers with the fire lines in the forests.

Material damage was very small, some of the fires not burning over more than 40 acres. Harold F. Hughes, principal of the Webster school of Fresno, walked eight miles with other volunteers, but the rangers had the fire out when they arrived.

The Pierce mill is turning out 90,000 boards a week.

VICTIM OF MALAGA ACCIDENT DIES

Charles Schmall, the driver of the Ford car that upset near Malaga Saturday evening, in which he and several companions were hurled, died at the county hospital yesterday morning from the effect of his injuries, while Andrew Philbert, whose condition was first believed to be the most serious of the two, is still alive, but in a precarious condition. Both men sustained fractured skulls. Philbert's home is in Badger, Cal.

Schmall was 38 years old and an ex-U. S. marine. He resided at Porterville and is survived by a widow and three children, the eldest of whom is but 11 years old.

An inquest will be held at 10 o'clock today. Stephens & Bean have charge of the body, which will be sent to Porterville for interment.

Peter Baretchan, another occupant of the car, escaped serious injury by jumping out before it turned over. He was only slightly hurt.

The men were returning to the Baretchan ranch, where they were employed.

Before the machine turned over, it is claimed it struck Jose Carraza, a Mexican, on the foot while he was walking along the highway. He was only slightly hurt.

PIONEER OF 3 STATES, 105 YEARS

WENATCHEE, Wash., Sept. 1.—John Galler, a pioneer of three states, is a resident of the Colville Indian reservation northeast of here at the age of 105 years. At the age of 35 he came to America from Germany, where he had served in the army, settled first in Nebraska, on the Elkhorn river west of Omaha. It was two years after that, he says, before he saw a white person.

After remaining in Nebraska for six years, Galler went to Montana, where he remained for an equal period. His next move was to Ellensburg, Wash., where he says, he was the first white settler. He removed to Wenatchee about 1868, as nearly as he can remember, and shortly afterward married an Indian girl 17 years of age and settled down to hunting and trapping and raising grapes for wine. He also did some prospecting and mining in an early day in this vicinity.

His Indian wife died at the age of 40, after having given birth to six girls and three boys. Five of the daughters are still living, as are all of the sons.
